But it has been often snough pointed out that the mere presence of Russia at Merv is now a matter of PAGNE in cases of 2 doz. Pints and 1 dex. but secondary importance. It would mean a Quarte. further addition to her prestige; it would mean the removal of an awkward possibility of a thorn in her side when the day came for an advance on Afghanistan; but in itself a Russian army at Mery would be little more formidable, if it would be more formidable at all, to Afghanistan and India then a Russian army at Askabad. The really important thing is the continual increase of the authority and influence of a rival Power in Northern Persia. In that part of the world the saying "He must increase but I must decrease," exactly expresses the relations of any two foreign influences which are face to face. At present it is not a matter of opinion, but a matter of fact, that the increase is on the side of Russin. England has retired out of sight and mind of the greater part of Afghanistan. The Ministerial conception of the whole matter appears to be that the better Russia is placed for striking, and the worse England is placed for COGNACS, SHERRIES, WHISKY, &c., &c. parrying, a blow at India, the more satisfactory is the situation in Central Asia. If this he so, it can only be said that the situation is growing more and more satisfactory every day.
